General information

General rules

During the conference, alcoholic drinks and narcotic drugs are strictly prohibited. Smoking is only permitted in designated areas.

Dress code

Being a serious simulation of the United Nations, delegates are expected to be dressed appropriately. All participants are expected to either wear a formal suit, with an appropriate shirt and tie or bowtie, or formal trousers, dresses or skirts (jeans are not allowed). Dresses and skirts can't be shorter than just slightly above the knee. Revealing tops are not allowed. Shoes also must be formal (wearing trainers is not permitted). Delegates may be denied access to the conference when appearing dressed inappropriately.

Badges

All participants will receive their badge when they register on the first day. You will need it to enter the conference buildings. If you lose your badge, you will have to obtain a new one from the Conference Manager or in the Executive Staff room for a fee of € 5.

Public transport tickets

Either upon arrival in Munich or during registration on the first day, the MUN Directors will receive public transport tickets for their students from one of the Executive Staff Members. The tickets should only be validated on the morning of the first day of the conference for it to be valid on the last day of the conference as well. The ticket is valid for the M Zone.

Conference Buildings

The first and last day of the conference will be taking place in the Hanns-Seidel-Stiftung (HSS), Lazarettstraße 33, 80636 München. On the second and third day the conference will be taking place in the European School Munich (ESM), Elise-Aulinger-Straße 21, 81739 München. More information on the Conference Buildings can be found on page 16-21.

Note passing

Note passing is allowed on official MunoM notepaper which will be provided at the conference. Notes must be written in English and should concern the debate. Inappropriate notes will not be passed on by the Administrative Staff. A message to a member of the Executive Staff may also be passed through a note.

Computer and printing facilities

No laptops will be provided by MunoM during the Conference. All Delegates are expected to bring their own device to work and do research on. Delegates wishing to print documents are highly encouraged to bring a USB stick to give to a member of the Administrative Staff with a piece of notepaper explaining which documents they would like to have printed.

Roles

The Executive Staff

The entire MunoM conference is organised by the Executive Staff. They are a group of twelve students, who each have certain responsibilities depending on their position. There are six positions in total with each a Head and a Deputy. More information on each position can be found on the MunoM website. The members of the Executive Staff can be found on page 2.

The Board of Directors

This is a group of three teachers who assist the Executive Staff when they are needed. The members of the Board of Directors can be found on page 3.

Delegates

Delegates make up the biggest group of participants. Every delegate represents a country and is assigned to a committee. They debate global issues and try to create resolutions, with solutions to these given issues.

Delegations

MunoM invites many different schools to participate in the conference. Every school is assigned one or more countries to represent. All delegates from one country create a Delegation. These countries are present in all or some of the committees. Every delegation is led by one or more MUN Directors, teachers from the respective schools.

Ambassadors

Some delegates double as an ambassador. They are considered the "main representative" of their country and are therefore usually a more experienced delegate. They are expected to provide assistance for the other delegates of their country if needed. They also need to attend the Ambassador meeting and give a 1-minute speech on the first day of the Conference. If their country is a member of the Security Council, they must ensure that their country is always represented there. For each country represented in the GA there is one Ambassador, and for each country represented in the ECOSOC there is also one Ambassador. This means that most countries will have two Ambassadors in total, one for GA and one for ECOSOC.

Student Officers

Student Officer is the general word for Chairs and Presidents. Each council is led by two chairs. The GA and ECOSOC as a whole are each led by a President and a Vice President. The Chairs of the Security Council are also called Presidents. The Student Officers for this year's conference can be found on page 3.

The Press Team

The Press Team is responsible for documenting the conference. They produce a daily newspaper, a video to show at the closing ceremony and take pictures. The Press Team normally consists of approximately 30 members, of which around 16 are journalists, 12 are photographers and 4 are part of the film-crew.

The Administrative Staff

The Administrative Staff (Ad-Staff for short) is a group of approximately 30 students. They support with the preparations needed to ensure the conference runs smoothly. For delegates they are primarily there to pass notes during the debate and provide assistance when needed. They are not there to buy you food, bring you coffee, etc. Please treat them with the respect they deserve.

Resolution Writing

As preparation for the conference, each delegate must write a draft resolution for at least 2 topics in their committee, that means two or three draft resolutions in total. A draft resolution should have at least 1 pre-ambulatory clause and 3 operative clauses. During lobbying time, the delegate should try to expand and better their draft resolutions by working together with other delegates, after which they will have their final resolutions ready for debate. Security Council delegates do not need to write a resolution, must however come up with at least 3 operative clauses for at least two of the three issues.

Each delegate should bring a digital or physical copy of these draft resolutions to the conference. The same applies to the operative clauses prepared by the Security Council delegates.

The following example shows the layout of a resolution. Please note it is merely an example of layout, not content. The standard MunoM resolution template must be used! It can be found on the website (www.munom.eu) and in the MunoM app.

General Assembly 3rd Committee

FORUM: General Assembly 3rd Committee
QUESTION OF: Discussing the global recognition and protection of transgender individuals
SUBMITTED BY: Sweden
CO-SUBMITTERS: Brazil, France, Germany, Israel, Vietnam, United Kingdom

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY,

Recalling the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, which affirms that all individuals are entitled to the full enjoyment of their rights without discrimination,

Recognising the stigma and discrimination faced by transgender individuals globally, including barriers to legal recognition, healthcare, education, employment, and housing, as well as an elevated risk of violence,

Noting with deep concern the dire need for legal protection and social support systems that protect and uphold the human rights of transgender individuals,

1. Calls upon member states to implement and strengthen anti-discrimination laws that explicitly protect transgender individuals from discrimination in all areas of life, including but not limited to,
    a) healthcare, through,
        i. the establishment of equal access to public health services,
        ii. the training of medical staff on gender sensitivity and trans-inclusive practices,
    b) education,

2. Encourages member states to introduce and enforce legislation providing legal recognition of gender identity without invasive or coercive requirements,
    a) ensuring that name and gender marker changes can be made through administrative rather than judicial processes,

3. Supports the inclusion of transgender-specific data in national health and social surveys to better understand and address the needs of transgender individuals.

The resolution is a full sentence with a full stop only at the end.

This is where the delegate indicates their committee, the topic, their country (the main submitter) and the co-submitters (the countries supporting the resolution). During lobbying time, the delegate will need to find at least five co-submitters.

These are the pre-ambulatory clauses, where the delegate explains why the issue is of importance. It is the introduction to the resolution.
Security Council delegates do not need to make pre-ambulatory clauses.

These are the operative clauses. This is the main part of the resolution. It states how the submitting countries want to solve the issue.

Pre-ambulatory Clauses

Pre-ambulatory clauses are clauses that refer to previous actions taken on the topic, and reasons why the resolution is necessary. It indicates the reason behind the resolution. They must start with one of the following words/phrases and write these words/phrases in italics. End each clause with a comma.

MUN Resolution rules

The following are Model United Nations rules that resolutions must abide:

1. Only the clauses written in the Information Booklet as well as the Delegate Guide and the Student Officer Guide can be used and the ones marked with an asterisk only in the Security Council.

2. A resolution cannot ask for a country to be thrown out of the UN, however it can recommend taking this procedure into consideration.

3. No resolution should contain any clear budgetary information, this means it cannot be debated how much and where from the funds for a certain operation should come.

4. The GA and ECOSOC cannot enforce any sanctions on countries not abiding, it can however contain a clause suggesting the SC do so.

5. The GA and ECOSOC cannot decide on any offensive military actions, it can only allocate peacekeeping forces.

6. A resolution is one sentence, separate operative and pre-ambulatory clauses with a comma and end the last operative clause with a full stop.

Approval Panel

What the Approval Panel does

The Approval Panel checks that resolutions are correctly laid out and are of a good standard of English to be debated at MunoM. It checks the grammar, spelling and layout of the resolution.

Processing resolutions

For the resolution to be debated it must first go through the Approval Panel. A resolution can only go through the Approval Panel once it has a certain number of co-submitters (this year it is 5 co-submitters). As one can see, resolutions go through a process:
(more information on steps 3, 9 and 10 can be found on the next page)

1. A delegate writes a resolution.
2. The delegate finds at least the requested minimum number of co-submitters (co-submitters are delegates who would like to debate the resolution, they are not necessarily fully in favour of the resolution but cannot be fully against).
3. The delegate sends the resolution to the chair by email, who will check if it is debatable.
4. The chair sends the resolution back to the delegate if any mistakes were found.
5. The delegate corrects the resolution, if any mistakes were found and sends the corrected version back to the chair by email.
6. The resolution goes through the AP.
7. After having received the AP-corrected resolution by email, the delegate corrects the resolution, if any mistakes were found.
8. The delegate sends that resolution to the chair by email.
9. The AP will check it again, then approve, disapprove or recommend it being failed.
10. The resolution comes back to the chair, who decides whether or not to debate the resolution.
11. The resolution is debated, and either passes or fails.

More information on point three

The chair will be the first step in the process of passing a resolution. They will be checking over the resolution, focusing on seeing if it is debatable (if the resolution will result in a good debate in the committee) and if it follows MUN rules. If any mistakes in these areas are found the chair will let the delegate know, and they will consequently correct their resolution. The email address will be provided by the chair in each committee.

More information on point nine

If the resolution is approved, it can be debated in the committee. If the resolution is disapproved it means that there are errors in the resolution, but it can still be debated. If the resolution is recommended to be failed, it means the Approval Panel thinks that the resolution should not be debated.

More on point ten

The chair decides which resolutions are to be debated in the committee and in what order. The chair may decide to debate a resolution even if it is disapproved by the Approval Panel. If a resolution was recommended to fail by the Approval Panel and the chair strongly disagrees with the Approval Panel's decision, the chair may go to the Chief of Protocol (see executive staff members) to get permission to debate the resolution anyway.
